Dr. Leila Kozak, PhD, MSc is a research psychologist specialized in integrative approaches to healing, mind/body medicine, cross-cultural healing modalities, consciousness-based healing and spirituality in healing.

People usually associate the use of integrative therapies with wellness and vitality. However, one of the fastest growing applications is in the field of palliative and hospice care. Healing is not the same as curing, and facilitating healing when people are seriously ill or at the end of life may be one of the most important areas in which we can help when curing is not possible.

This event is part of an exciting line-up of experiential workshops being held in conjunction with the SpiritHeals Conference.
